Headteacher's Roundup

We've settled down into the routine of school life, at the end of our second week of term. We have had a really positive start to the new academic year and the students have coped tremendously with the bad weather this week. Smiling faces, smart uniform, general calmness, superstars across the board!

The senior team and I have witnessed our students' excellent manners as they move between building and down corridors. The new lunch time routine is working well. My thanks to everyone for their positive attitude. In my visits to lessons this week I have seen focussed, hard work. Well done to everyone.

Last week, we had an excellent fire drill and as ever, our students responded in the most fantastic manner. Next week we plan to practise our lock down procedure.

On a final positive, our extra-curricular activities have now commenced. We have a broad variety of things on offer, so please encourage your child to take part and make the most of every opportunity.

My best wishes for a relaxing and peaceful weekend.

International Day of Democracy

15th September

The International Day of Democracy is celebrated around the world on 15 September each year. It was established through a resolution passed by the UN General Assembly in 2007, encouraging governments to strengthen and consolidate democracy.

The values of freedom, respect for human rights and the principle of holding periodic and genuine elections by universal suffrage are essential elements of democracy. In turn, democracy provides the natural environment for the protection and effective realization of human rights.

At each of the key moments that have marked contemporary history, UNESCO has supported the peaceful development of societies by contributing to the construction and consolidation of democracy, and the development of democratic institutions, especially in times of transition.

Because democracy demands that we uphold the principles of “dignity, equality and respect” of human beings - principles which are enshrined in our Constitution – UNESCO celebrates the International Day of Democracy every year.
